Assassins: Remarkable new documentary now streaming on Leeds Film Player

Must-see documentary Assassins, presented in partnership with Hyde Park Picture House, is now available on Leeds Film Player. This mind-bending tale of political intrigue and assassination in North Korea plays alongside other great titles including the atmospheric sci-fi parable Last and First Men, dark Icelandic thriller A White, White Day and the touching language class documentary Atelier de conversation.

We also have a fascinating new shorts programme 3.11 A Sense of Home, an anthology of films, each of exactly 3 minutes and 11 seconds, marking the tenth anniversaries of the Tohoku Earthquake and Tsunami in Japan. Curated by Japanese filmmaker Naomi Kawase, directors also include Bong Joon Ho, Apichatpong Weerasethakul and Jia Zhang-ke.

All features and shorts available on Leeds Film Player until Wednesday 31 March

Francis Lee's critically acclaimed Ammonite comes to streaming platforms

Ammonite, Francis Lee's highly anticipated follow up to God's Own Country, sadly won't start its life in cinemas, but will be arriving on streaming platforms this month. Kate Winslet stars as the pioneering 19th-century palaeontologist Mary Anning, who has been excluded from the male scientific establishment. When Charlotte Murchison (Saoirse Ronan) is entrusted to her care, the pair develop an intense relationship, altering both of their lives forever.

Ammonite streams on demand from Friday 26 March

Sami Blood: Available until 16 March on Leeds Film Player

Amanda Kernell's powerful coming-of-age debut Sami Blood was an audience favourite at LIFF 2017 and also won the European Parliament's prestigious Lux Prize for Best European Film. Elle, a teenage reindeer herder in 1930s Sweden faces a society rife with prejudice and discrimination as she is forcibly removed from her family and sent to a state boarding school. 'A spellbinding performance by young Lene Cecilia Sparrok' - Sheri Linden, LA Times

Minari: A Korean-American family let their roots grow in Arkansas soil

Lee Isaac Chung's Sundance winning semi-autobiographical tale Minari follows a Korean-American family that moves to an Arkansas farm in the 1980s, in search of their own American Dream. As they struggle with the reality of rural isolation in a dilapidated trailer, everything changes with the arrival of their mischievous grandmother. Minari is an uplifting look at the resilience of family and what really makes a home.

Streaming from Friday 19 March

International Women's Day 2021: Online film screenings, Q&As and more...

Every year, International Women's Day celebrates the social, economic, cultural and political achievements of women whilst also calling for equality - where men and women are treated the same. Although the main event takes place on 8 March, there are events to mark IWD throughout the month, including the FLY! Festival of Black Women's Film, a screening of Salt of The Sea with Leeds Palestinian Film Festival and more.

Preparations to Be Together for an Unknown Period of Time

Curzon Home Cinema are releasing Preparations to Be Together for an Unknown Period of Time this month, an evocative and unnerving psychological drama by Hungarian director Lili Horvát with beautiful cinematography. Márta, a forty-year-old neurosurgeon, falls in love. She leaves her shining American career behind and returns to Budapest to start a new life with them. But the love of her life claims they have never met before.

From Friday 19 March on Curzon Home Cinema

Essential new music documentary Poly Styrene: I am a Cliché

The essential new documentary I am a Cliché profiles Poly Styrene, the enigmatic Anglo-Somali frontwoman of seminal punk band X-Ray Spex. Poly was the first woman of colour in the UK to front a successful rock band, using her unconventional voice to sing about identity, consumerism and postmodernism in late 70s Britain. Poly's daughter Celeste examines her mother's legacy both as an icon and a mother.
